Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 21 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Wet and windy in the northwest. Mostly fine elsewhere.

This Evening and Tonight:
Windy in the far northwest with gales, and drizzle being replaced by heavy rain later. Fine and dry elsewhere, clear skies allowing it to turn chilly in the south with a few fog patches forming.

Wednesday:
A band of rain will move southwards across Scotland and Northern Ireland. Fine and dry elsewhere with sunny spells after early fog clears. Remaining warm in the south and east.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Often windy in the north with spells of rain focused on the northwest. Otherwise, plenty of fine weather with warm sunny spells for many.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.